25 Speed Limit During Repair

Stringent measures to curb reckless driving were taken Monday by the provincial government, when an Order-in-Council was enacted establishing a maximum speed of 25 miles an hour for all vehicles moving over roads and over highways under construction or repair.

In explanation of the new order, government officials stated that many motorists showed a total disregard for safety of members of road crews and that this had made some restrictions necessary.

Those violating the new order will be liable to penalties provided in the Vehicles and Highway Traffic Act.

One official declared that some workmen have been hurt by these careless drivers. "We have had barriers knocked down and road signs disregarded."

At some points where construction or repair work has been carried on police have been stationed to check motorists.

"Nazi Spy" Here Friday-Saturday

"Confessions of a Nazi Spy," the sensational drama inspired by the revelations of Nazi espionage activities brought out in the recent spy trials in New York, Los Angeles and San Francisco, is the featured item this weekend at the movies. Edward G. Robinson is starred, supported by Francis Lederer, George Sanders and Paul Lukas.

This is a sensational picture in the true sense of the word, because it vividly depicts the menacing under-cover activities fostered on this continent by the most dangerous of all the enemies of our democratic institutions—the Nazi regime in Germany. Warner Bros., who made the picture, have brought out into the open all the danger of these under-cover activities, which are being curbed by local Canadian as well as American authorities. The story of the film is fictional, but there can be no doubt that the dangers are very real.

High School Principal Gets City Appointment.

Mr. O. J. Kirk, Principal of the Didsbury High School, has received an appointment to the staff of the Calgary Junior High and will take over his new position when school reopens in September.

There were 300 applications for nine vacancies on the Calgary school staff, Mr. Kirk being one of the nine chosen.

Of the last three principals of Didsbury High School, each have received appointments to Calgary schools.

Hail Causes Severe Damage to Crops

Saturday was a bad day for the farmers around Didsbury and east of here. Starting on a comparative narrow strip the storm swept through the town, breaking windows and damaging crops, then it widened out on its way east to a width of about eight miles.

It is reported that it zig-zagged a swath for almost 100 miles to Drumheller and then it turned southward and struck with intensity at Gleichen and Brooks. In many parts of the hailed areas the wheat crops appear almost 100 per cent loss but it is thought that oats and barley may recover from their beating.

Rangers, Guides, Brownies Entertain Their Mothers

The Legion Hall was the scene of a merry event on June 29th when the Rangers, Girl Guides and Brownies entertained their mothers, the occasion marking the first anniversary of Guide work in Didsbury.

Amusing games in which all took part filled the evening. Mid laughter and cheers the younger members won the most points, the mothers bravely paying their forfeits and voting it great fun.

A dainty lunch was served by the groups after which all joined in the impressive closing exercises.

The singing of God Save the King brought the meeting to a close.

The Royal Visit

An historic event, which may be expected to leave in its train a lasting and beneficial influence on the course of events in the Dominion, is the recent visit to Canada of Their Majesties, King George and Queen Elizabeth.

The occasion, as doubtless nearly everybody knows, marks the first appearance of all time in this country of the reigning monarch, and this in itself is indicative of the growing importance of the Dominion of Canada as a nation and as an entity within the Empire.

Their Majesties' tour across the country was nothing less than a triumphal progress. To those who have always been led to believe that Canadians are an undemonstrative and phlegmatic people, the warmth of the reception accorded the King and Queen by their loyal subjects on this side of the Atlantic was a surprise and occasioned amazement to Britons domiciled in the Motherland.

Nor was the acclaim with which Their Majesties were received confined to Canadians of British birth. On the contrary, it was noted during the progress of the Royal tour, that naturalized Canadians vied with those of British birth in the warmth of their demonstrations and the heartiness of their welcome to their sovereign liege and his beautiful consort.

Touching The Hearts

His Majesty's kingly demeanor combined with his human outlook and attitude inspired respect and high regard on the part of all who had the opportunity to meet him personally and of that much larger multitude who, of necessity, had to be content with little more than a fleeting glance and of reading about his actions and attitude during his visit.

As for Queen Elizabeth, it is no exaggeration to say that her beauty, her consideration for others and her many gracious gestures and kindly actions, coupled with an unassuming manner which did not detract one iota from her high rank, took the country by storm. Canadians immediately took her to their hearts and she left an impression which will long be remembered.

One of the beneficial effects which may be expected from this happy event is a tightening of those ties, loose though strong, which bind Canada to the Motherland and the sister units of the Empire. Had there been any thoughts in the minds of other rulers who harbor the wish as father to the thought that these ties are disintegrating, they must be thoroughly disillusioned by now.

It is also natural to assume that the visit of the King and Queen of Canada to their overseas realm will result in closer unity between the constituent parts of this Dominion, and that is a result which is devoutly to be desired if this country is to assume and maintain the rank in the world of nations to which she is entitled by virtue of her great expanse, the richness of her resources and the courage, initiative and vigor of her people. There should be no important cleavages between any two or more of the nine provinces whose peoples demonstrated in such forthright manner their loyalty, admiration and affection for the occupant of the Throne and his queen.

Undoubtedly, too, the opportunity afforded by the Royal visit to the Canadian people to become better acquainted with the King and the Queen will go a long way towards dispelling any desire which may have made some headway among a minority to espouse some of the various "isms" which have for their objective the overthrow of democratic rule. The enthusiasm which the presence of Their Majesties engendered in the hearts and minds of the people of this country can only be translated as a fervent desire to maintain here that form of government of which King George and Queen Elizabeth are the symbolic heads.

Cementing A Friendship

The decision, also, to extend the visit of the rulers of the Empire to Canada's friendly neighbor to the south, proved to be a most happy plan. The welcome accorded Their Majesties, the first British king and queen to set foot in the United States, in that country is ample evidence of the cordial relations existing between the two great democracies and the visit should do much to cement and augment a kindly feeling and co-operative spirit between the peoples of Great Britain and the United States and Canada and the United States respectively.

Their Majesties had not set foot on Canadian soil very long before their presence made itself felt in improved business conditions. The very fact that they made the trip across the Atlantic was evidence that the international situation was not as dangerous as some feared and believed. The evidence inspired confidence, and confidence was all that was needed to speed up the wheels of industry and that in its turn, should go far towards solving some of the country's major problems.

It may well be that the visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth to Canada was destined to mark the turning point in the economic welfare of the country.

Long live King George VI. and his beautiful and gracious consort, Queen Elizabeth.

England Was Her Birthplace

But Queen Elizabeth Claims Scotland As Her Native Land

It is generally assumed that Queen Elizabeth is Scotch. Her father is a Scottish earl and her mother was English. The principal family seat is Glamis Castle, in the county of Forfar, Scotland, but the Earl of Strathmore has another mansion at St. Paul's, Walsdenbury, Hertfordshire, England, and it was there that the future Queen was born. Legally, a child takes the nationality of its father, therefore the Queen is a Scot.

But Her Majesty goes further than that. In her speech at the laying of the foundation stone of the Supreme Court building at Ottawa, she referred to Scotland as "my native land." When she spoke to a group of men from the Forfar county of Angus at Vancouver she referred to it as "my native county".

There is a story told of a Scotsman who was boasting about the number of eminent men who were born there. An Englishman said, "Surely you will not claim that Shakespeare was a Scot?" "No," replied the Scot, "but he was good enough to be one."

Queen Elizabeth may not be a native of Scotland but she is good enough to have been. St. Thomas Times-Journal.

The Wisdom Of Turkey

Ministry Of Education Forbids Make-up For Its School Girls

Turkey has ruled that girls at schools and universities must not try to look like movie stars. The Ministry of Education of Istanbul has notified heads of schools that the girls must not have their hair waved, curled, dyed or otherwise deviate from the "natural".

The misses are also forbidden to use lipstick, powder, face cream or other forms of makeup, and must not wear jewelry or silk stockings.

Boys must have their hair neatly and closely cropped.

The Easiest Way

In view of the prescribed distances at which photographers had to remain during the royal stops on the Western Ontario itinerary, it was suggested that the best way to obtain a picture of their Majesties, and avoid the crowd was to buy a postage stamp.

Strength Of Empire

Trend Is To Better The Condition Of The Masses

"I'll tell my Dad." It remained for Ald. Lakie, of Lethbridge, to furnish the best proof yet of Queen Elizabeth's democracy of spirit. Ald. Lakie knew her father in Scotland. When the Queen met the Lethbridge alderman and he told her of his acquaintance with her father, she said, quite as casually as one Old Countryman to another, "I'll tell my Dad."

If there has been a tendency in democracies during the past quarter of a century to set up classes which show the extremes up in contrast—and we fear there has been—the humanness of King George and Queen Elizabeth shown during their Canadian tour should do much to cure it. The British Empire will continue strong as long as the whole trend is to better the position of the masses, and that betterment will come about the sooner if there is a sympathetic understanding of democratic principles by those in high places.—Lethbridge Herald.

Revenue From Wolves

Considerable Source Of Wealth Derived From Wolf Pelts

Canada has a general unsuspected source of wealth in its wolf skins.

Alive the wolf is a marauder, destroying sheep and poultry on Algoma farms, for example, and doing serious depredation among our game.

But dead, his pelt is a thing of value, whether it be for robes, fur coats or other uses. And at times it provides a substantial export trade.

In the fiscal year ending March 31, 1937, for instance, exports of wolf pelts were valued at $665,018, and in the five years from 1934 to 1938 the total value of such exports was $1,982,792, not very much short of two million dollars.—Sault Ste. Marie Star.

Television Announcer Says Broadcasting Needs A Man's Voice

Jasmine Bligh, the taller of two girls who announce the British Broadcasting Corporation's television programs, took a bow when viewers voted they preferred women to men announcers. But, said she, they probably would not have voted so if they could not see her. "In television, I suppose, the public finds a woman announcer easier on the eyes, but there is something about non-vision broadcasting that seems to need a man's voice."

A Link With The Lost Colony Where First English Child Was Born In America

The Lost Colony of Roanoke, the first English settlement in the New World, came back briefly into the world's news the other day when the bulk of a supposed ship of Sir Walter Raleigh's day was dug out of Roanoke's sand dunes. The ship, partly exposed by a storm, was exhumed on the chance it might shed some light on the colonists and little Virginia Dare, first child of English parentage born in America.

Roanoke Colony was founded by Raleigh in 1585. Quarrels among its leaders and troubles with the Indians, however, led to its abandonment a year later, when the colonists got Sir Francis Drake to take all hands back to England. In 1587 a still larger expedition of three ships was sent out under John White as governor, who, as the settlers' supplies began to run short, sailed back home for provisions and other necessities, leaving on the island 89 men, seventeen women and two children. Among them were his daughter, Elinor Dare, and her nine-day-old child, Virginia.

Owing to the exigencies of the Spanish War, White was unable to return until 1591. Arriving in August during a heavy gale, his landing party first sounded a trumpet call and sang "many old English tunes", but got no answer. Going ashore at daybreak, they found curiously cut on a tree near shore the letters "C R O" and at the fort the single word "Croatoan" carved on a post, but found nowhere any sign of the recent presence of a white person. The colonists' houses had been demolished and many of their tools, chests and other belongings were scattered about in the greatest confusion, assumed to be the work of Indians. Even the governor's own suit of armor was "almost eaten through with rust."

The carved letters were taken to mean the colonists had gone to Croatoan, some miles distant. In his narrative White says he had arranged for such messages in case of the colony's removal. Moreover, he had ordered the settlers to carve a cross over the letters if they were in trouble. The expedition sailed the next morning for Croatoan, but stormy weather and loss of a "cask of fresh water" decided the captain to run for the West Indies and return in the Spring. Later, however, still heavier seas forced a change of course and the vessel sailed for England. Other rescue expeditions were sent out in later years, the last in 1603 without result.

Captain John Smith in 1608 sent a woodsman into the Chowan region to seek the colonists, but in vain. Four years later Captain Samuel Argall of Virginia made a search among the Mangog Indians. Some authorities believe the survivors of the Roanoke colony intermarried with the Indians of the Croatoan or Hatteras tribe.

Two years ago a quartz stone, carved with a message purporting to be from Elinor, Virginia Dare's mother, and allegedly relating the fate of the Lost Colony, was picked up on the Carolina coast, and it is now on exhibition in New York. It has been under investigation at Emory University, Georgia. The message has not yet been accepted as authentic. It says that the colonists migrated to the lower reaches of the Chowan River, that during two years of sickness and war their number decreased to 24, and that of this number all but seven, including Virginia Dare and her father, Ananias, were massacred by Indians in 1591. Royal Visit To Pictou, N.S., Recalled Story About Scotchman

The coming of King George and Queen Elizabeth to Pictou, N.S., recalled the visit of the Prince of Wales, later King Edward VII., made in the summer of 1860 and a tale old-timers have handed down about the occasion.

In one section of Pictou county there was a piece of crown land that was coveted by one of the hardy Scots who first settled this district. The government of the day had set a grant price on it, but the Scot considered it too high.

When the reception for the Prince of Wales was being held, the settler squeezed through to the front rank and by accident was presented. He was not slow to seize the opportunity.

"Your mother (Queen Victoria) has a block of land up beyond my place. You would not be hearing her say what she would be taking for it?" he asked the prince.

But before the future king could reply, someone intervened and the interview was ended with the question unanswered. To this day the story often is told by elderly residents who heard their parents repeat it.

The prince drove from Truro to Pictou in an open carriage and a newspaper of the day records the drive as "a triumphal procession climaxing in a stupendous demonstration in Pictou." One of those associated with the celebration was Sheriff Harris, whose grandson, W. H. Harris, now is sheriff of Pictou.

Achieved Distinction

Two Men Who Received Recognition In King's Honor List

Two men who have achieved high distinction in widely differing spheres and localities received recognition from the King in the honors list.

They are Lieut.-Colonel Frederick Peake who was awarded the C.M.G., and Dered McCulloch, who got the O.B.E.

"Peake Pasha" spent 26 years among the Arabs and has just relinquished his post as commander of the Arab Legion which he raised in troubled Transjordan. He was a close friend of Emir Abdullah and the late Lawrence of Arabia.

Mr. McCulloch is the popular director of the British Broadcasting Corporation's children's hour and has undergone 40 operations in the past 21 years 38 of them the result of war wounds. "Uncle Sam," as he is known, had a leg amputated in 1938 following an automobile accident.

The Name Elizabeth

Is Used In Various Forms By Nearly Every Country

"Elizabeth" is derived from the Hebrew "Elisheba," which may be freely interpreted as "dedicated to God." "Isabel" is also derived from this Hebrew name. Variations of this name have been often used by the royal families of Europe, states the Brantford Expositor, especially those families of France, England and Spain. Some common forms of "Isabel" in European languages are: English, "Isabel", "Bell", "Ibbot" and "Ib"; Scotch "Isabel", "Isbel" and "Tibbie"; French "Isabeau" and "Isabelle"; Spanish "Ysabel" and "Bela"; and Portuguese "Isavel" and "Isabelina". Forms of "Isabel" are more common in Scotland and Spain, while the English and Germans seem to prefer "Elizabeth" and its variations.

Applications Increased

British War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha told the House of Commons that from Feb. 1 until April 30 there were 166,000 army enlistment applications and 62,965 were accepted. The number of enlistments for the same period in 1938 and 1937 was respectively 24,254 and 18,220.

A sweet young thing, asked if she had any religious views said, "No," but she had some lovely picture postcards. 2312

A Remarkable Tour

Devotion Displayed By The Masses To Our System Of Government

A feature of their Canadian tour which must greatly have impressed the King and Queen is the tumultuous welcome they have received in a host of small towns, more especially the isolated settlements along the railways in Northern Ontario and in Western Canada.

They have seen the Dominion in shirt-sleeves, Canada at close range. They have been cheered by miners and farmers and clerks and housewives, and literally by hosts of children. They have been greeted with an informality they must have found a delightful change from the starched and solemn functions which have an important place in such an itinerary, and they are likely to remember the Washago farmer who called out "Hi-ya, King!" long after the endless parade of morning-coated notables has faded into a dim impression of a shy man making a ceremonial bow.

Their Majesties have encountered Canadian democracy, but they will have observed that it marches with a devotion to our system of government and a deep personal respect and affection for King George and Queen Elizabeth. Such an outpouring of the people as this tour has seen seldom if ever has been witnessed anywhere in the world, certainly never in this country, and it is not explained by idle curiosity. The explanation goes far deeper. Ottawa Journal.

Typewriters Have Large Letters

So Chancellor Hitler Can Read His Speeches Without Glasses

Chancellor Hitler wants to keep it secret that he has to wear reading glasses. But, in private, the Fuehrer dons the reading aids.

One of the Berlin newspapers was ordered off the streets because an editor let go through a story about three new typewriters being delivered to the Fuehrer's office. It was explained that the machines were to be used by Hitler's secretaries. Each typewriter was equipped with extra large sized letters. Manuscripts written on these machines could be read easily.

The Fuehrer does not like to appear before his people with glasses. If he used ordinary manuscripts for his speeches, he would be unable to see the letters, or at least he would have his trouble reading the notes. The larger sized type gets over that obstacle.

As Hitler is 50 years old, it is easy to understand that his eyesight may be weakening. W. L. Clark in Windsor Star.

Made Them Real

To children, it is difficult to visualize Kingship. The fine constitutional points of the British monarchy are not for them, and Kings and Queens are characters in fairy tales. This Royal visit has destroyed that attitude. It showed them that the King and Queen are very real, very human, very charming and gracious persons.

New Royal Chair

Was Used During Their Majesties' Visit To Halifax

Delicately carved and fashioned from mahogany, a new "royal" chair served as the throne seat for King George VI. when he visited historic Province House at Halifax.

Queen Elizabeth sat beside the King in the same chair that the latter's grandfather, King Edward VII., used when he visited Halifax as Prince of Wales 60 years ago.

The new chair is the work of A. H. MacMillan, Halifax, one of the few master craftsmen in Canada able to execute a piece of work of such delicacy.

It is a replica of the old chair with the exception of the crown which adorns the peak of the back piece.

Instead of St. Edward's crown which is on the old chair, the new crown is a wood replica of the imperial state crown.

MacMillan has been engaged several weeks on the intricate job. Every inch of work required the greatest precision and care. Fifty different tools were used in the construction. Every detail required the most refined handling.

Will Visit Canada

English Schoolgirls' Pipe Band Now At World's Fair

Twenty-five English schoolgirl bagpipers, now at the New York World's Fair, will visit Canada. The eldest of the group, which comes from Dagenham, England, is 18-year-old Pipe Major Edith Turnbull; the rest are around 14 years old. And every one of them is an English girl, with nary a drop of Scots blood. J. W. Graves, the manager, who founded the band in 1930 is not Scottish either. But Sassenachs or not, the girls can skill in no mean fashion and wear the kilt and sporran like any braw Scotsman. Altogether there are now 60 Dagenham girl pipers, other groups of whom are touring England and parts of Europe.

Record For Locomotives

Engine Hauled Royal Train 3,000 Miles Without Being Relieved

The locomotive which pulled the Royal train bearing the King and Queen of England 3,000 miles across Canada will be placed on display at the Railroad Exhibit after a thorough check in Montreal. The engine, says the New York Sun, which is probably the most highly decorated locomotive in the world, went the entire 3,000 miles without relief, a record for railway locomotives. Usually engines are run only about 1,000 miles on a single haul.

The hornbill, a bird of Malaya, sheds not only its feathers once a year, but also the lining of its crop.

Britain's commercial trans-Atlantic fleet of four high-performance seaplanes is now engaged in final trials, involving incidentally nearly 70,000 miles of flying over and around the British Isles. They represent a significant stage in the development of civil aviation, embodying for the first time in perfected form apparatus for the transfer of fuel in mid-air from a tanker aircraft, thereby improving range and payload without excessive cost in size and power.

Years of intensive research under the guidance of Sir Alan Cobham, famous for many pioneer Empire flights, preceded the adoption of mid-air fueling devices to enhance the performance of the trans-Atlantic airplanes. The system endows an aircraft with greatly increased range, or permits it to carry heavier payload without demanding airdromes of abnormal size for the long take-off runs that would otherwise be inevitable.

A large proportion of the engine power available in an airplane is needed only during the few minutes occupied by take-off and initial climb, for all but those few minutes the powerplant of a civil plane is run throttled down to 60 per cent, or less of full power. Hence the system, like other methods of assisting take-off such as the Short-Mayo composite aircraft or pick-a-back plane, and catapult launching, enables optimum efficiency to be taken from the airplane, which is not limited in load by the severe take-off conditions.

Mid-air fueling has reached the stage where the pilot of the receiver aircraft need only fly on a straight and level course during the process. No unusual behavior of the aircraft reveals that something is going on; the pilot is dependent for his knowledge of the progress of fueling on the instruments before him in the cockpit. Nearly 1,000 gallons of fuel may be taken on in less than 15 minutes, augmenting the laden weight of the trans-Atlantic seaplanes from 46,000 pounds to 53,000 pounds.

The airliner takes off with partially filled tanks and sets a steady level course at safe height, which will vary according to the weather. The tanker pilot steers his craft to a position below and astern of the airliner. Upon his experienced shoulders rests responsibility for keeping distance and synchronizing flying speeds. A weighed cable is trailed below and behind the airliner. Flying below the airliner, the tanker is brought at relatively slow speed up to the cable, which makes contact with the leading edge of the tanker's wing. Helped by the sweep back of the wing, the cable slides along towards the wing-tip, where it engages with a hook attached to which is another line passing to a winch in the tanker.

An operator in the tanker hauls in the weighted cable. The tanker rises slowly above the airliner and takes up station behind it and slightly to one side. The weight is drawn in through an opening below the nose of the tanker. It is detached from the cable, which is then attached to the hose-pipe by means of a bayonet coupling. The winch starts paying out the pipe, at the same time a winch in the airliner begins to haul in. In a few minutes the hose-pipe is drawn down to the liner, the nozzle snapping automatically into the socket provided for it in the tail, and is held fast by hydraulically-slotted claws. Fuel then flows under gravity to the airliner's tanks. Rate of flow may be up to 150 imperial gallons a minute. From the British Aircraft Society.

Useful Hints

An envelope sealed with white of egg cannot be steamed open.

Keep knife handles out of water. It discolors and tends to loosen them. Use a rubber sponge for cleaning a soft felt hat taking care to rub only one way.

Rubber rings from fruit jars are useful to prevent dishes from slipping when standing on ice.

A crust of bread tied in a muslin bag and placed on top of the water in which greens are boiling will help to prevent the unpleasant smell.

The World of Wheat

By H. G. L. STRANGE

Director "Crop Testing Plan"

"The agricultural scientist has helped farmers to make two blades of grass grow where only one grew before, and has assisted in many ways to increase farm production, but what does the agricultural scientist now intend to do in helping to distribute market those products now held as unsold surpluses?"

This was part of the address of welcome by Mayor Telford, of Vancouver, to the recent conventions of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association and of the Canadian Society of Technical Agriculturists.

One part of the answer given to His Honor the Mayor was that besides increasing production, the scientist had also greatly increased quality, and that it was this superior quality contained in Canadian grains and alfalfa, grass, feed, root and garden vegetable seeds, that was enabling these stocks to be sold in foreign countries in larger quantities than could be done had the extra quality not been present.

The scientists admitted, however, that in spite of the extra quality there were still unsold surpluses, and that, therefore, something else is needed too. What this something else is, was explained in the agricultural economists and that is to put it in plain English, it is to find a market for the surplus.

Following factors have tended to raise prices: Official confirmation of crop deterioration in Russian Trans-Volga regions - Reports of unfavorable harvesting weather in U.S. southwest - U.S. Department of Agriculture indicates sizable reduction in northern hemisphere crops - Egypt reduces customs duties on foreign wheat - Indications that Spanish wheat crop below requirements.

Following factors have tended to lower prices: Indian Monsoon active and prospects for autumn sowings favourable - Condition for newly seeded wheat in Australia and Argentina satisfactory - Floating wheat stocks increase - Slow consumption demand for corn in Europe - Russia again reported offering wheat and makes sales to Germany - Prospects good; wheat averaging average.

Westcott Notes.

Westcott W.I. held the June meeting at the home of Mrs. Hughes on Wednesday last. Miss Hughes had charge of the program, legislation and read two interesting papers on "minors" and "growth of the British administration of law". The talk from the study "Inside Europe" was given by Mrs. Shouldice. Much satisfaction was expressed at the success of the demonstration given on June 21st by Miss Milne. Due to unsettled weather conditions, it was decided to cancel all picnic plans. A violin and piano selection by Bobby and Phyllis Hughes was enjoyed by all present. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. McFarlane on the last Thursday in July.

Notes From the West

Miss M. Fisher, of Calgary, spent the weekend with Mrs. A. McInnis.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Parker were Calgary visitors this week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Hogg visited Mr. and Mrs. E. Lowrie on Sunday.

A speedy recovery to Mr. R. Lucas, who is confined to a Calgary hospital.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Eggleston (nee Annie Lucas) on the birth of a daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Emerson McInnes are visiting the latter's home in Saskatchewan.

Miss J. Lowrie, of Calgary, was a weekend visitor with her parents at Inverness.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Evans were Sunday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Miller, of Westward Ho.

Mr. and Mrs. Sugden, of Calgary, were holiday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Batten, of Elkton.

Quite a number of young people took in the Sundre Stampede, but as usual they found the going much better than the coming.

Hail visited the district again last Saturday, doing considerable damage along the Little Red, especially at Mr. E. Byrt's and Mr. M. Campbell's.

Rugby Notes

Our Community Hall presented a very busy appearance last Thursday afternoon, when the annual school picnic was held, combined with a "miscellaneous shower" for our teacher, Miss M. Birkett, who is shortly being married. Whilst races and games were in progress outside, the ladies were very busy inside and long flower-decked tables were placed in the Hall laden with various good things to eat. After sports were over, a short program was given by the Rugby pupils. When this was finished, the future bride and bridegroom were presented with a number of beautiful gifts, which they acknowledged with a few gracious words of thanks. Everyone then sat down to lunch, the children having a table to themselves, and the rapidity with which lemonade and ice cream disappeared was little short of marvellous. All good things must come to an end though, and folks began to think of evening "chore" and home. So closed one more pleasant community gathering. We all join in wishing every happiness to Mr. C. S. Brown and his future bride, who, we are very glad indeed is remaining in our district. —Contributed.

A Bazaar will be held by the W.I. in Rugby Hall on Saturday afternoon, July 8th, roads and weather permitting.

A Chicken Supper, program and dance will be held in Rugby Hall on August 9th. Sports in the afternoon. Further announcement as to time, etc. Hillbillies' orchestra.

A Clever Reply

"Do you remember the time when your father drove a donkey cart?"

The candidate for election fixed his glasses and gazed thoughtfully at the interrupter. Then he replied: "As a matter of fact, I had forgotten the cart. But I am thankful to see the donkey is still alive."

Treasures A Tin Of Chocolate Given By Queen Victoria

One of the 40,000 ration tins of chocolate given by Queen Victoria to her troops in Africa during the Boer War at Christmas 1899 is the treasured possession of E. Reed, 62-year-old unemployed printer of Hastings.

Reed was serving as lance-corporal in the Royal Berks Regiment when he was given the chocolate. Many times in recent years he has been tempted to sell the tin to the highest bidder. At other times he has been so hungry that it was hard to keep from eating it.

The red, blue and gold tin bears Queen Victoria's initials, a crown, the words "South Africa 1900", and a message, "I wish you a Happy New Year, Victoria R.I."

Pen Will Be Valued

King George Used One Belonging To M.P. For Sherbrooke

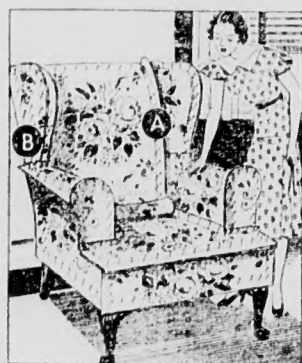

C. B. Howard, Liberal member of parliament for Sherbrooke, solved an embarrassing situation for the King and Queen at the signing of the city register.

The King stepped forward, took up one of two fountain pens on a small table, but the pen would not work. He tried the other pen, but it, too, was dry. His Majesty grinned, looked up for help.

Howard stepped forward, produced his own fountain pen, and the King and Queen signed in turn.

CHEERY NEW SLIP COVER NO TROUBLE TO MAKE

Know Easy Tricks For Trim Fit

How gay old chairs look—fit dressed up in smart new slip covers! You can easily make such a cover—fit any type of chair, a wing chair, too.

The cover in our picture is in the half-way stage, but you can see how lovely it will be—a riot of bright flowers on natural linen.

To make smooth fabric down inside back and over seat, leaving a 4-inch tuck-in between back and seat. Pin along top and sides and cut 1 1/2 inches outside pins for seams. On a wing chair allow an extra 1 1/2 inches to tuck in between wing and inside back, along seam marked A in sketch.

Fit apron, arms, sides and back the same pin-on way and no trick to covering the wings if you first cut simple paper patterns.

If your chair is broader at the top than at the middle, make extra long plackets at both back seams, marked B in the sketch.

Finishing seams, fitting the flounce—each step goes quickly, smoothly with the aid of diagrams and directions in our 32-page booklet. Tells how to make smart slip covers for all types of chairs, sofas, for automobile seats. Suggests trimmings, fabrics.

REDINGOTE - EFFECT SLENDERIZER

By Anne Adams

Redingotes, or dresses that give a redingote effect, are the smartest formulas for slenderness and summer charm that we know of! And Design No. 4132 shows how simple and how effective this idea is when print and plain fabric are combined in a mock-redingote frock! What's more, with the aid of this so-very-smart new Anne Adams pattern, you can stitch up other lovely warm-weather dresses without the redingote inset in the skirt. Rovers spread out in a becoming point, and are ever so flattering whether in a contrast to match the skirt inset, or self fabric trimmed with a double row of lace. And sleeves, whether fitted and slashed or full and flowing are a joy.

Pattern 4132 is available in misses' and women's sizes 16, 18, 20, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34 and 36. Sizes 26 takes 3 1/2 yards 39 inch fabric and 7 yard contrast.

Send twenty cents (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly Size, Name, Address and Style Number and send order to the Anne Adams Pattern Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermott Ave. E., Winnipeg.

SELECTED RECIPES

NORWEGIAN PRUNE PUDDING

- 1 1/2 cups chopped cooked prunes
- 1 cup Crown Brand Corn Syrup
- 3 tablespoons Benson's or Canada Corn Starch
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 3 tablespoons cold water
- 1 cup cold prune juice
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice

Wash 1 pound prunes; cover with warm water and simmer gently until tender. Drain; save the prune juice. Chop the prunes (there should be 1 1/2 cups). Heat prune juice, prunes and Crown Brand Corn Syrup in top of double boiler. Mix corn starch and cinnamon to a paste with cold water; stir into the hot prunes. Stir and cook until the mixture thickens; cover and continue cooking for 10 minutes. Remove from heat; add lemon juice. Stir thoroughly. Pour into chilled moistened moulds. Serve with whipped cream. 1/4 cup chopped nuts may be added if desired. (Six servings).

CREAMED HAM A LA KING

- 6 Shredded Wheat Biscuits
- 1 tablespoon minced green pepper
- 1 tablespoon minced pimiento, finely chopped
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 3 cups milk
- 1/2 teaspoon paprika
- 2 1/2 cups diced cooked ham
- 1/2 cup sliced, sauteed or canned mushrooms (optional)
- 1 egg yolk
- Worcestershire sauce

Cook the green pepper and pimiento until tender in the butter in a double boiler. Add the flour and blend, then stir in the milk and paprika. Stir and cook until smooth and thickened; then cover and cook 10 minutes. Add the ham and mushrooms and heat, then add the beaten egg yolk and cook over direct heat, stirring for one minute. Add Worcestershire sauce to taste and salt if required. Serve on Shredded Wheat Biscuits cut crosswise in halves and heated in a moderate oven of 375 degrees F for 10 minutes. Serves six. Variation: If desired, the mushrooms may be omitted and one teaspoon prepared mustard added.

Production of Nickel

Although Canada Holds First Place There Are Other Sources

The following article appeared in a recent issue of the Sault Ste. Marie Star:

Canada indeed supplies most of the world's nickel, but her position in that regard is not absolute as most Canadians are inclined to think. There are other sources which may become competitors.

This came up during recent discussions in regard to the question of shipments of Canadian nickel to Germany. Prime Minister Mackenzie King recently characterized as "highly erroneous" a statement made in London to the effect that Germany had imported five times as much nickel as usual in January and February this year and the implication that the supply came from Canada. While Canada was the dominant producer of nickel, he pointed out, other sources are New Caledonia, Burma, Norway and Greece. Most Canadian exports go to Britain and the United States, which re-exports "an appreciable amount" of Canadian nickel to Germany. Direct exports of nickel to Germany have steadily declined for the past two years. Nickel exports from Canada dropped $12,000,000 to $49,000,000 in the year ended last March 31 and only a little more than 1 per cent. went directly to Germany, stated Mr. Mackenzie King. Reports of increased nickel imports by Germany in recent months, he added, are apparently true only as regards nickel ore, and none of the ore in question is believed to have been exported from Canada. "So far as the statements of increased importation of nickel in the form of ore into Germany have any significance, it is not that Canada is contributing to that increase, but on the contrary that alternative sources of low grade supplies are being sought in other countries."

Next year a new source of nickel will come into the picture, for the Kaulatunturi mine in the Petsamo mountains of Finland is now being developed by the Mond Nickel Company and will commence shipments shortly. In the Petsamo mountains, a Finnish engineer writes, there is a narrow zone about 25 miles in length in which there are several nickel deposits. Only one of these, that at Kaulatunturi, has been thoroughly prospected, and it is estimated to contain over 5,000,000 tons of copper-nickel ore.

Even that, Canada's production so far overshadows that of the rest of the world that this country remains in a dominant position. But the danger in restricting export is that this might give encouragement to the development of new properties.

Frenzied Bull Supplied Rural Postman With Plenty Of Thrills

"Northerner," columnist of the Yorkshire Post, illustrates the fidelity of rural postmen by the following tale:

One of these public servants was seen to race across a field at a furious pace and clear a five-barred gate. He picked himself on the safe side just as a frenzied bull charged at the gate and stuck its horns into the top bar.

A passerby said, "That's a narrow escape you've just had this morning."

"This morning?" said the postman, pulling bits of grass and nettle from his tunic. "This morning! It happens every morning."

In Case Of Emergency

British Farmers Urged To Store Feed For Their Cattle

All available wheat would probably be requisitioned for human consumption in wartime, and British farmers should therefore lay in stores of barley, oats and corn to feed their cattle in case of emergency. Agriculture Minister Sir Reginald Dorman-Smith warned in the House of Commons.

He explained the government was making plans to control distribution of fodder after outbreak of war.

"A very strong heart, indeed," said the doctor. "You should live to be eighty at least."

"But, doctor, I am eighty."

"There you are! What did I tell you?"

SHE COULD NEITHER WALK NOR SLEEP

Arms and Feet Swollen With Rheumatism

This woman suffered for many years. Pain sapped her strength until she lost hope of recovery. Many remedies were tried, but nothing broke the grip of her crippling rheumatism. At last her husband persuaded her to try Kruschen Salts: "My arms and feet were swollen with rheumatism," she writes. "I could not walk nor get regular sleep, and nothing did me any lasting good. I was so hopeless of ever getting better, I lost my good nature entirely. Then my husband persuaded me to try Kruschen Salts. After two weeks I began to feel better. I persevered, and in six weeks, I was doing housework. Later, I was able to go for a walk. Now I am free from pain and I feel grand." (Mrs.) F.W.

Rheumatism is commonly caused by deposits of uric acid crystals, which lodge in the muscles and joints. Kruschen helps to break up these deposits of troubling crystals and to convert them into a harmless solution, which is removed through the natural channel—the kidneys.

RURAL HEALTH CONSERVATION

Attention is drawn to the value of the county health units by announcement of the awards in the Canadian Rural Health Conservation Contest for 1928. Financed by the W. K. Kellogg Foundation, the contest is conducted in Canada by the Canadian Public Health Association in co-operation with the American Public Health Association.

For the second time the major award in Canada has been won by the St. Jean-Iberville-Laprairie-Naperville County Health Unit, the headquarters of which are at St. Jean, Que., and the medical officer, Dr. J. A. Lapierre, D.P.H.

Judging in the contest is made by a carefully selected group of health experts, the communities being appraised on the measures it takes: (1) to provide and safeguard its water supply; (2) to furnish adequate and safe sewerage disposal; (3) to reduce infant and maternal deaths; (4) to combat tuberculosis and syphilis; (5) to protect its citizens against other communicable diseases; (6) to insure healthy children; (7) to protect and safeguard its milk and other foods; (8) to promote effective co-operation with its physicians and dentists in furnishing necessary service to all those who need them; (9) to enlarge and improve its lay-understanding of ways and means of preventing sickness and death and of maintaining good health.

Rural health conservation is one of the most important problems in Canada and it is to be hoped that the example set by the various county health units in the Province of Quebec will stimulate action in many other parts of Canada.

Duncan Van Doren arrived within the first week after the accident. Duncan's well-bred face showed the effects of grief and shock; its pleasant veneer was rubbed off. "Well, I'm here now," he said, "and I'm here to stay until she gets well—or doesn't get well."

Mrs. Dana gave him a wan smile. "Duncan dear!" It was certain, they had assured her, that her child would live. "But Bixford, who is the greatest bone specialist this side of Chicago, won't make any prognosis yet about the spine."

Conrad Jordan, who had left Tahore instantly to join in the search, remained to look after Gunnar. "Though there's nothing I can do," he admitted to Lynn Dana, "except walk up and down that horrible-smelling hall with him, burbling about all the injured spines I've known cured, and dragging him out to eat infrequently. He begrudges every instant away for fear it might be the time they would let him see her." He shook his head. "And why can't he see her?"

"Why, I understand that no one—his friend began.

"On the contrary. All her family, the old governess, the large, plucky, optimistic aunt—That's the abominable part of it."

The man in the wheeled-chair was aghast. He seemed to have aged years in days. "You think they are definitely determined to keep him away from her? She isn't conscious enough to ask for him?"

"Even if she is, they won't let him in!" Mary Dana Webster said hotly. She managed to run in to see Lynn Dana every day for a few minutes of aching sympathy. "It simply burns me up to look at him," she told her husband. "He knows what it means. Do you suppose he blames himself, Neddy?" she asked him. "That makes it a million times worse if he does."

"Well, he might at that," Ned Webster had shaken his head. "If he and the old lady hadn't given her the plane."

"But, if she hadn't gone up with that miserable bum of a girl—"

"Yes, but if she hadn't been a flier it never could have happened to her," he said reasonably. "And I expect that's the way the family figures, her mother anyway."

"I know," Mary Dana Webster nodded. "I wish Sally Ann would come home."

"She will later," Lynn Dana said. "I cabled and wrote that her presence would mean more to Sarah Lynn in a little while, during the waiting period—weeks, months of it, probably." All three of them were thinking that it might be years, as it had been for him. "You know, people are no end kind and sorry, but the drama goes out of the situation, presently. I mean, they get used to the fact, and life goes on again, and—well, the calls and the flowers and books and things dwindle away."

"There'll be whole conservatories full of flowers now that Duncan is here," Mary said bitterly.

CHAPTER XIII.

Gunnar Thorwald was pacing the corridor when Duncan Van Doren got out of the elevator. Duncan's head was down; he did not see the flier. Gunnar stared incredulously, striding toward him, thrusting out an arm to block his way.

"You have seen her?" There was an emphasis on the first pronoun which made the question at once a demand and a protest.

Duncan looked at him with swimming eyes, nodding, his face convulsed. He manifested no resentment, no conviction that before him stood the cause of the tragedy; only an engulfing flood of sympathy and sorrow. He gulped, groping for his handkerchief. "Horrible—cruel—"

Gunnar pushed past him toward the elevator, but it rose as he reached it, so he turned and went leaping up the stairs. A woman with a big bouquet of garden flowers shrank out of his way.

"Mercy!" she said to her husband. "That fellow looks like a mental case!"

He flung himself through the door in spite of the card in the brass frame which read:

Dana
Drs. Dunn and Bixford
NO VISITORS

but he stood still on the threshold, staring.

Mrs. Dana, standing at the window, her back to him, turned at the sound of his entrance. "Please leave the room!" she said in an angry whisper. "No callers are permitted. My daughter is—"

Gunnar was not listening. There was nothing she could tell him about her daughter. He continued to stand still, looking at her.

"Leave this room instantly! I will ring for an orderly to put you out!" Mrs. Dana cried wildly. "Haven't you done enough? Aren't you satisfied with the suffering, the agony—?" she was bearing down on him in soft fury. "Do you want to kill her?"

But Gunnar had reached the bed. He had leaned over Sarah Lynn, shaking, and said her name.

She was as nearly white as the olive and amber and ivory of her skin could be, and her nose, her brow, her chin, her cheek-bones were as sharp and salient as if they had been chiseled from marble. Her eyes flew open, bigger and darker than ever, sunk in shadowed hollows, and a startled recognition came into them at once and a blazing joy.

"My heart!" Gunnar said hoarsely. "My dearest heart!" He could not have known what he looked like, but he remembered to smile at her. Mrs. Dana came and pulled at his arm but he shook her off and bent lower, still smiling. "My heart—"

Sarah Lynn's eyes widened, the pupils distending and a strange look of fright and something stranger still came into them. "No!" she cried. "Go away! Please, please go away!"

Mrs. Dana was pressing the button. "Now, do you hear?" she triumphed. "Do you hear?"

Gunnar thought it was delirium. He said gently, "It is Gunnar, my dearest one—to stay with you always!" He bent to kiss her

But Sarah Lynn, pinioned and helpless, able to move nothing but her eyes, nevertheless, with every fibre of her being repelled him. "No, no! Go away! Never come again—never—come again!"

The press played it up and the radio buzzed with bulletins about Gunnar Thorwald's return flight across the Atlantic, but no newspapers came into Sarah Lynn's hospital room, and they never tuned in for news flashes—only for music or comedy programs, or an occasional playlet which was known to be pleasant and amusing.

Gunnar's name was not mentioned after the day of his visit. When, at length, he had been compelled to leave the room, he could hear Sarah Lynn's voice, spent but shrill, saying to her mother, "Make him go away! Make him go away!"

He had not waited to hear her mother's answer, hovering over her in an agony of protective tenderness, and he did not know that Sarah Lynn had cried, quietly, ceaselessly, for three days. The tears trickled out of the corners of her eyes and slid down her temples into her hair, and she could not lift her hand to wipe them away.

Her doctors and nurses were disturbed, but they didn't seem able to control it. "This isn't helping any," Miss Burke said.

"It is just the reaction, the great relief, after that distressing and cruel interview the other day," Mrs. Dana insisted. "Darling, you are safe with Mother, and no one is going to bother you again! Mother's right here!" She saw the nurse's cool gray eyes upon her and followed her out into the aggressively clean-smelling corridor. "It is perfectly natural," she said rather combatively. "She regards him as the cause of her misfortune, so of course she shrinks from him."

"You think so?" Miss Burke said levelly. "Well, I can't give all the answers, but that wouldn't be my diagnosis." She went away with her noiseless, heelless tread. She was glad she was going on her vacation; she hated to have cases get her as this one did.

Sarah Lynn persistently asked for the old family doctor from Los Gatos and they were obliged to send for him. He could contribute nothing, they felt sure, but if it was a comfort to the child.

"Suppose you just step out and let us have our visit alone," he said mildly. Then he sat down and patted her hand. "Well, Sarah Lynn, I brought you into the world, as the old saying goes, and I saw you through measles and chickenpox and the rest of 'em. I'm mighty sorry about this. Was there anything special you wanted to say to me?"

She could not turn her head, but her eyes turned to him. "You tell the truth, always. Am I going to die?"

"No," he said heartily. "I'm not up on all the details of your case, of course, but I had a talk with Dunn. No, there's no doubt about it, Sarah Lynn; you're going to live."

"Must I?"

He cleared his throat. "I guess you must, girl. I guess that's your chore."

Sarah Lynn said after a long pause, "I know doctors can't kill people. It's only animals that can be—what do they say? 'put out of their misery.' But can't they just not make people live?"

He shook his grizzled head. "That's their chore, Sarah Lynn, making people live." Then he said briskly. "But it's not going to be like this, you know, always."

Sarah Lynn said, "They used to give me stuff all the time to make me sleep. I wish they still did. If I have to live, I think they might do that for me."

"Pain still bad?"

"Not my back—my head, my heart. Will you ask them to give it to me again?"

"No," the old country doctor said. "I won't do that, Sarah Lynn. You wouldn't want me to. I guess it took plenty of grit to go up in your plane, and more than plenty to come down in a parachute. But I believe you have a lot of grit left." He stood up, looking down at her, his eyes very bright. "Yes, you've got to live, Sarah Lynn."

But Sarah Lynn, pinioned and helpless, able to move nothing but her eyes, nevertheless, with every fibre of her being repelled him. "No, no! Go away! Never come again—never—come again!"

He had not waited to hear her mother's answer, hovering over her in an agony of protective tenderness, and he did not know that Sarah Lynn had cried, quietly, ceaselessly, for three days. The tears trickled out of the corners of her eyes and slid down her temples into her hair, and she could not lift her hand to wipe them away.

Queer Book Markers

Some People Make Use Of Anything That Is Handy

City librarians of Longpoint, Colorado, report that they have found several toothbrushes in returned books. Other unorthodox markers include safety pins, comic valentines, absorbent cotton, blades of grass, price tags, candy wrappers, crochet hooks, photographs and drawings.

"People jump up to answer the doorbell, to keep the steak from burning or to perform some other emergency task and they jam anything that is handy into the book," is the way the librarians figure it out.

Real Baseball

Is Game In Small Town Between Home Team And Visitors

Baseball is a game played on a hot afternoon under a broiling sun and under the watchful eyes of indiscreet enthusiasts. A game played under the stars and floodlights is something else. The specialist may even question whether the games played in the big league parks, day or night, are really baseball. The real, true genuine baseball, in the opinion of many is the game played in a small town between the home team and the visitors a game attended by the entire population and a game which enforces a public holiday because the stores are deserted anyway. That is baseball. Halifax Chronicle.

Dave Jenkins, who is running a tractor on the highway constructing crew at Rocky Mountain House, spent the holiday visiting his home east of here and friends in town.

You must see "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," because it dares to call a swastika... because it exposes the menace of Nazi espionage... because it is your duty as a loyal Canadian to learn the truth!

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Brickman of Dauphin, Manitoba, the Misses Rosella and Phyllis Brickman, also of Dauphin, are visiting their uncles, Jack and R. G. Ady. The visitors are en route home from Vancouver, where they spent a vacation with other relatives.

The engagement is announced of Ruby Mae, youngest daughter of Mrs. D. Klink and the late Mr. Klink, to Mr. Alvin B. Scheer, youngest son of Mrs. H. G. Scheer and the late Mr. Scheer of Strathmore. The wedding will take place in July.

LOCAL & GENERAL

Rev. and Mrs. C. J. Hallman, who had been visiting in South Dakota and Eastern Canada, returned home this week. They drove home in a new Ford.

Mr. Lew Wrigglesworth reports having seen a mountain lion on his farm in the Elkton district. Lew has missed several of his sheep and there is no doubt that he has discovered the cause.

Calgary Exhibition and Stampede, July 10 - 15

Arrangements are progressing very satisfactorily for the 54th Calgary Exhibition and Stampede, to be held July 10th to 15th, 1939. There is every indication that there will be a large entry in the several departments of the Exhibition. New stabling accommodation for 198 horses is being provided with the hope that adequate stable accommodation will be available for this year's entries.

The opening feature, the Stampede Parade, will be of more than ordinary interest this year, as there is to be a "Pageant of Empire," in which there will be fourteen floats, each representing a different part of the Empire.

The Livestock Section which was inaugurated last year, will be improved and will give the thousands who see the parade an indication of the high quality livestock produced in Alberta.

There will be seven days of running races, commencing the Saturday prior to Exhibition week.

The Stampede will again draw contestants and patrons from all over the North American continent, and Mr. J. B. Cross, chairman of the Stampede committee, can assure patrons that the Calgary Stampede will again live up to its reputation of being one of Canada's most thrilling portrayals of Western sport. The final prizes in the chuck-wagon race have been increased.

An outstanding program has been engaged for the grandstand platform each evening, and the Friday Morning Livestock Review will again be featured for young people and their parents.

Following last year's policy there will be magnificent firework displays Monday and Saturday evenings, which are annually the best to be seen anywhere in Canada.

The Cowboy Ball will take place Friday evening on Ninth Avenue, and on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday mornings uptown street displays will be featured.

Pioneers will again meet at their log cabin headquarters on the Exhibition Grounds beside the Indian village.

Patrons numbering 223,425 attended the last Calgary Exhibition and Stampede, and President J. Chas. Yule expects that it will be possible to surpass these figures in 1939. This will be known as British Empire Year in honor of the Canadian visit of Their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.
